Long ago, a significant event transpired that led to CIS Humans being prohibited from freely accessing even the most basic three-hour tours of the lower levels of the Multiverse.

The specifics of this event have faded into obscurity over the ages, yet it is evident that its implications were profound.

In contemporary times, there remains a lack of consensus among modern Multiverse Scholars regarding the true historical account, primarily due to the deliberate erasure of records from that period in the official Akashic Records Depository.

This act was carried out by a disgruntled civil servant, who was reportedly incensed after his cousin's funding for a National Health Commission project aimed at developing "GOF transgender mice" was abruptly revoked.
This cancellation followed a corporate congress committee's inquiry into the necessity of such genetically modified creatures, which included a pointed reminder in the cancellation notice about the infamous incident involving the mad scientist Mister Brain and his assistant Pinkie.

Even now, CIS Humans continue to face restrictions that prevent them from freely accessing even the most basic tiers of the Multiverse.
Years ago, my beloved late Uncle Albert, who devoted his life to legally gaining access to the Multiverse, introduced me to an old acquaintance of his.
This friend, a self-proclaimed smuggler with a storied career, boasted about his expertise in navigating the complexities of the Multiverse's magnetic, harmonic membrane barriers.

He specializes in crafting the necessary documentation to facilitate passage through the Multiverse's Immigration Bureau, which is located at every Stargate Point of Entry.
He is the first to bring attention to the fact that all CIS Humans have been prohibited from entering the Multiverse, even in regulated capacities such as domestic workers, seasonal migrants, or for any access beyond a limited number of day passes and a select few organized tours.

This situation serves as a backdrop for him to showcase his exceptional services and expertise in navigating the complexities of immigration, enabling CIS Humans to secure jobs in various Multiverse Industries that local residents have reportedly chosen to avoid.
Having dedicated his life to finding a legitimate path for Multiverse Immigration, he firmly advised against importance of pursuing lawful avenues for immigration rather than resorting to dangerous and illegal methods. I inquired of both individuals, questioning why anyone would be willing to pay an exorbitant amount of Gold Dinars to a smuggler if the consequences of being caught were so severe.
